By the President-A Case of First Come, First Served-The First Decision Under the New Land Acc.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17 .- | Special telegram to THE HERALD. -The impression seems to exist in Idaho that the Cour d'Alene reservation will not be thrown open to settlement until the President shall have issued a proclamation to that ef fect, as he did in the case of Oklahoma. There is no foundation for this impression, as I discovered upon inquiry at the interfor department to-day. From the officials of that department I learn that upon the signing of the act by President Harrison the lands became the property of whomso-

Rawson and Jacob A Shoemaker of Bishop, Cal., charged with unlawfully cutting 747,000 feet of timber from public lands in that state. It appears from the record that the timber was cut by Rawson, and 550,000 feet manufactured into lumber and used by him in improving ranches, by building houses, barns, etc., and that 107, 000 feet were sold. Rawson made a pro-position in settlement of the case to pay for the timber sold to his neighbors, but contended he was entitled to the lumber used by himself. The secretary sustains Previous to the hospital.

Previous to the departure of the train the executive committee of the Radical as-sociation presented an address to Gladstone, in which it was stated the association was hopeful of a brilliant triumph for Gindstone and his followers in the coming election, but the tumoil prevailing in the depot was so great Gladstone was utterly mable to say a word.

When the train in which Gladstone was traveling stopped at Tunbridge, Kent, a large crowed was assembled there. Gladstone replied to addresses presented him. He assured them that whatever measure of home rule was proposed its spirit and basis would be unchanged from those of the formations. the former times, one that would be com-patible with English honor and would particle with English honor and would bring peace and contentment to Ireland and life to the union. He pointed out with regard to the Irish mem-bers, that each had entered parliament subject to the piedge that, on every ques-tion affecting Ireland, the minority should sacrifice its own opinions and co-operate with the majority. with the majority. Every member of the Irish party from the leader downward was bound by this pledge. It was true that in October, 1881, he denounced Parnell in the severest terms, whereas for several years past he has been in active co-operation with him. He had denounced him because Parnell before then, on more occasions than one, had used language dangerous to the empire respecting the total separation of freland, and also because Parnell bitteriy opposed the land act upon which the Liberals relied as the great instrument for Irish grievences. When home rule was introgrievences. When home rule was intro-duced in the house it was 'frankly and mag-nanimously adopted by the Irish party. The plan was based on the twin ideas of, first, handing over to Ireland full and effi-cacious control of her local affairs; and, second, maintaining equally full, efficacious imperial control of those affairs. "If any fresh pian of home rule is proposed, as I trust it may be," continued Gladstone, "I hope it will be founded on a rigid fidelity to those bases, neither of which can be ustifiably separated from the other. Parhell recently said it may be time to think of Tory allies. They played that game once and it did not answer. The Tory con-science does not care much about home rule; it is not in the Tory intellect."

The time was not far distant when a free American would strike back. "The Republican party of the nation," he said, "owing to treachery in its ranks, has grievously disappointed us. In future the colored man must help himself and do all he can to alleviate his condition."

The French Newfoundland Bill. Paris, March 17 .- The preamble of the Newfoundland bill, which was laid on the table in the senate to-day, says France has protested repeatedly against English lob-ster factories on the French shore as contrary to existing treaties. Arbitration, it is added, ought to result in lasting conditions which will satisfy Newfoundland.

The funeral will be conducted with reinglous ceremonies. The body will be intered in the crypt of the royal mansoleum in the church of La Superga, on Collins heights, near Turin. Aboe Rujol says the dying man told him he did not profess the achelistic sentiments attributed to him; that he was inclined toward Roussaeu's dectrines, and would die like an emperor, adhering to principles of the concordat and imbued with the religious sentiments of the Bonspartes.

A Revolting Deathbed Scene.

the Bonspartes.

LONDON, March 17 .- The Times' Paris orrespondent, commenting on the death of Prince Napoleon, deals severely with the attendant circumstances of the scene. He says: "Religious fanaticism and human ambition made a struggle at the sick bed, where modern science had prolonged for a forthight a life otherwise ended long ago. The church and throne disputed for possession of a body which each desired to convert into a trophy. Higotry on one side and thirst for power on the other added prolonged horrors to the dying agony. Each had recourse to lying in order to simulate success. Public opinion, revolted by the hideous zeal of those who becured the dying in order to make them clients of the confessional, was revolted still more by the rebel son who persists in rebellion in order to secure an ephemeral, useless ambition made a struggle at the sick bed, DeYoung, in announcing his withdrawal, said he had information, which he believed to be true, that improper offers had been made to some of his supporters. He also recognized the fact that it was apparently impossible for him to secure the support of all Blanchard's and Felton's adherents, while it would be possible for him to transfer the larger part of his following to Felton.
